6 DROWN IN STATE'S FLOODS

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THERE are two items in today's Star every subscriber of this newspaper should read clear through. One is the story of the Northwestern farm colony which the government set up a few weeks ago in the Matanuska valley in Alaska, and which has already got "cold feet" because the colonists aren't willing to build their own houses. The other story is a dispatch from Buenos Aires, capital of the Argentina. The governor of the Argentine province of Chaco is planning to come to the Southern United States to recruit cotton farmers for the Chaco region, which, like Brazil, has a climate and earth suitable to cotton production.

OFFICIALS ANSWER

Some of the Colonists
Don't Want to Build
Their Own Homes

PALMER, Alaska. (AP)—Colonists who haven't found the Matanuska valley the "promised land" they expected listed their grievances Wednesday night for presentation to Eugene Carr, "trouble shooter" from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, who announced the protests would get "no sympathy" unless found justified.

The group loudest in protest, headed by Patrick Hemmer and Mrs. I. M. Sanovik, enumerated their grievances in detail. They said:

1. Many of the colonists feel that the project was misrepresented to them, saying they expected homes to be ready for them upon their arrival, and they are not satisfied with tent life.

2. Many protests against medical facilities, claiming that the doctor sent here was primarily for the transient laborers. The colonists heard he had never taken care of women and children before and alarm grew after the death of a small boy from pneumonia last week. In reply, colony officials said many colonists, to whom cod liver oil was given to build up their health for the long winter nights ahead, refused to give it to their children, emptying it on the ground.

3. A group, their numbers not exactly known, want pay for all the work they do, including the clearing of their own land. They are refusing to cut logs and help build their homes, saying the corporation agreed to build the log homes. Some of them are reported to have voted to strike for pay on July 2. A rumored strike of FERA transient workers has been halted by payment of wages to them last Monday and Tuesday.

4. Jealousy exists among some of the colonists, over the farms they were given.

5. The protest is heard that old seeds, which will not grow, have been distributed; that cutworms in the ground and insects are hurting crops. One man reported finding frost in the ground in the woods and said he believed it never left the ground there.

6. It is feared the climate will cause much sickness.

7. Many are worried over the school situation, particularly those living eight miles or more away, where no roads are yet built or under construction to the schoolhouse site.

8. Some families from Michigan and Wisconsin say they came north with

Dollar Day to Be Held in Hope on Saturday, June 29

Many Bargains Offered as Result of Wet and Backward Season

CONTEST OFFERED

Rodeo Tickets to Be Prizes for Events in Rodeo
Parade at 2:30

Due to a backward selling season, the business houses of Hope are holding a town-wide dollar day and bargain festival Saturday.

Most of the merchandise stocks are too heavy for this time of the year, and in order to move them rapidly the merchants are offering special reduced prices for Saturday's event.

Not only can Saturday's shoppers save materially on their purchases through these cut prices, but a saving can also be made by buying before the state sales tax goes into effect. The tax will be applied to practically all sales after July 1.

As an added incentive for people to come to Hope for Dollar day, a special Rodeo parade has been arranged for 2:30 Saturday afternoon. The parade will consist of a band, cowboys, oxen teams and a contest parade for the best decorated car, wagon or bicycle. Free tickets to the rodeo on July 3 and 4 will be given to the winners.

Survey Begun on Electrical Rates

Power Companies Summoned Before the State
Utilities Commission

LITTLE ROCK.—Following a hearing before the Department of Public Utilities Wednesday, the principal electric power concerns operating in Arkansas appointed a committee of rate experts to study proposed "objective" or "inducement" rates, designed to increase materially the use of electric current without a corresponding increase in the total bill paid by the consumer.

The committee met with members of the Public Utilities Commission in the afternoon and outlined procedure to be followed in making a study. The study will be used as the basis for the proposed rates. The committee will work out a suggested uniform type of rate, study proposed classification of cities and towns and make other technical studies. Results will be reported to the state Utilities Commission in about three weeks.

The committee plan of studying the proposed new promotional rate system was suggested by C. Hamilton Moses, lawyer for the Arkansas Power and Light Company, and was approved by P. A. Lasley, chairman of the commission.

About two weeks ago the commission issued an order directing all electric utility concerns to show cause why the so-called objective rate plan should not be put into effect in this state. The commission said the plan would call for a material immediate reduction in basic rates and for establishment of an objective rate system which would enable consumers to use a much larger quantity of current for approximately the same average monthly bill they had paid over a given base period, such as each month of the year.

Most of the spokesmen for the power companies said that they could not make an immediate reduction, but that they would be glad to go into the matter of the objective rate.

Keg Liquor Urged for Stave Trade

Congressman Fuller Declares Small Industry
Is Penalized

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Representative Claude Fuller predicts that hundreds of men will return to work in the stave industry of Arkansas if Congress enacts his amendment to the liquor laws permitting bulk liquor to be shipped and sold in kegs.

"We are asking for bulk sales to aid employment in our states, to protect the smaller units in the liquor business from the whisky trust and to provide the consumer a good quality liquor at a reasonable price," Fuller declared.

Expressing optimism on prospect of favorable action on the amendment by the house ways and means committee, Fuller said that the stave and heading industry of Arkansas has suffered "untold harm from the unfair and discriminatory regulations" which have consigned whisky to glass bottles.

Curtain at 8:15 Thursday on Hope Show at Saenger

150 Local Citizens in Cast of "The World's All Right"

"BROADCAST" STORY

Drama in a Radio Station
Is Theme of Y. B. M. A.
Performance

The curtain raises at 8:15 p. m. Thursday on the first local showing of the stage production "The World's All Right."

A cast of 150 local persons will be presented on the Saenger theater stage under auspices of the Young Business Men's association. The play will be repeated Friday night.

The production is the story of a big-time radio station, run by a young fellow who started on a shoe-string in the hope of making a million. He finds himself involved in financial difficulties because he couldn't sell advertising to big-time advertisers. He hires the highest priced talent to put on a big program. And then difficulties really begin.

Oil Wells 'Go to Town,' Menace City's Skyline

With a complete "right of way," won in a recent election, oil wells are invading the downtown section of Oklahoma City, creating a new type of civic skyline. In this unusual picture, several of the city's finest buildings, endangered by the feverish hunt for "liquid gold," overlook the encroaching web-like structures which menace their existence.

Barring of Gold Suits Requested

Roosevelt Asks Congress to Pass Law Reinforcing Devaluation

WASHINGTON. (AP)—President Roosevelt asked congress Thursday for legislation to bar suits for payment of government securities in gold or its equivalent value in devalued currency, to guard the administration's monetary policy against court attacks.

This is regarded as an outgrowth of the supreme court's decision in the gold cases, which intimated that recovery could be made in the Court of Claims if actual damages were proved as the result of the devaluation of the gold dollar.

Youth Program at Once

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Leaders of the administration's 50-million-dollar youth-training and job-supplying program said they would start their project within 10 days.

Aubrey Williams, in command, said he hopes to have the project in full swing by mid-July.

Fight Over Utilities

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The stormy temper of the house over the controversial utilities control bill revealed itself Wednesday with a heated clash attending adoption of a rule making the measure the next order of business. It was an adopted indication of the predicted bitter floor fight, with a widening split between President Roosevelt and many members who usually support New Deal legislation.

Despite the declaration by Chairman O'Connor, Democrat, New York, that the Rules Committee had brought in a liberal rule allowing five record votes on the differing senate-approved and house substitute bills, they still were dissatisfied.

At issue primarily were contrasting features of the senate-approved bill which would direct abolition by 1942 of "unnecessary" utility holding companies and of the bill reported by the House Interstate Commerce Committee, leaving that matter largely to the discretion of the Securities Commission.

A vote will be had on substituting the senate bill, but proponents of abolition foresaw no direct vote on that question unless, contrary to usual procedure, two motions to reconsider the measure are permitted.

Tax Squabble

WASHINGTON. (AP)—A presidential disavowal of plans for enacting the new wealth taxes by Saturday coupled with stubborn house insistence upon originating the levies Wednesday night prompted abandonment of efforts to push the program pell-mell through congress.

Instead of attaching the new rates on big incomes and inheritances to the pending resolution prolonging the life of a long list of nuisance taxes, Democratic leaders decided to make a separate bill of them and let it follow the course usual to such legislation.

The $500,000,000 nuisance tax resolution already approved by the house was called up in the senate and adopted speedily while the house ways and means committee planned to begin consideration of the tax-rich program next week.

Democratic house ways and means leaders tentatively planned a fortnight of hearings to begin Tuesday and to be followed by a week of executive sessions. Such procedure, they Citizens Bank Bldg.

Sheriff Jim Bearden announced Thursday the opening of an office in the Citizens National bank building. The sheriff and his field deputies will occupy three rooms, one of them to be used as a rogues' gallery, where extensive files, records and photographs are to be kept for use by officers.

Another room is to be used as a storage place for collection of evidence, and to use in criminal investigation. No records will be moved here from the county seat, Sheriff Bearden said.

$360 Still Needed to Retain Agents

County Solicitation Has Gathered $839.90 of Required $1,200

Tabulation of funds collected to retain Hempstead county's agricultural agent and home demonstration agent showed Thursday that $839.90 had been obtained in the drive toward a goal of $1,200.

A balance of $360.10 is necessary to retain the two agents.

The local office, now under threat of being closed, continued to operate Thursday under special permission from the agricultural extension service.

Additional time was granted to permit committees to complete the canvass of the county.

While some townships had reached the assigned quota of funds, others were running far behind and still others were making satisfactory progress. Committeemen said several persons had pledged contributions, but checks had not been delivered to date. It was hoped that these funds would arrive shortly.

Harley White of Hope, is treasurer of the drive, and in the event any person or firm is overlooked who desires to contribute to the fund this may be done by contacting Mr. White.

The $1,200 is necessary to pay the county's half of the agents' salaries for the remainder of the year. The federal government bears the other half.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina. (AP)—Jose Castells, governor of the Argentine Chaco territory, said Thursday he would visit the Southern United States within the next three months to study a project of bringing a number of American farming families to Chaco.

To expedite his plans for cotton-growing expansion in Chaco he plans on giving a concession of 120 acres to each such family.

Train-Wrecker to Get Sanity Test

David Barnes, 16, Believed Demented by Examining Officers

LITTLE ROCK.—David Barnes, 16-year-old ragmuffin, confessed, retracted and told so many conflicting stories Wednesday about the wreck of a Missouri Pacific freight train near the County hospital Sunday that exasperated officers planned to have physicians give him a sanity test Thursday.

Tuesday the boy said that he and several other boys caused the wreck in which three persons were killed and $40,000 worth of property lost.

Then he retracted his confession. Wednesday morning he again admitted that he caused the wreck and implicated a boy whose name had not been mentioned in connection with the case previously.

Then a short time later he retracted part of his second confession. Officers working on the case, Deputy Sheriffs Raper, Connor and Townes, became convinced that questioning the boy is a waste of time.

A brief conversation with Barnes is sufficient to convince anyone that he is of a low grade mentality. He has but little education. He said that he was forced to quit school more than a year ago because he had no clothes or books and no way of getting money to buy them. He said that he was in the sixth grade at the time.

However, officers said that they had learned that while the boy was attending school he was a constant source of worry to his teachers. The teachers considered him abnormal and they were constantly in fear that he would harm other students, especially girls.

Additional time was granted to permit committees to complete the canvass of the county.

While some townships had reached the assigned quota of funds, others were running far behind and still others were making satisfactory progress. Committeemen said several persons had pledged contributions, but checks had not been delivered to date. It was hoped that these funds would arrive shortly.

While Red river continued to recede from high flood stages, the first casualty in Hempstead county from swollen streams was reported to The Star Thursday.

James Nelson, 22, negro, lost his life in Yellow Creek near McNab about noon Wednesday. His body was recovered about an hour later.

Reports reaching The Star said that Nelson and his brother Arthur had been plowing in a cotton field near the creek and had decided to take a swim after lunch.

Both jumped into the creek. When James failed to show up the older brother swam to the shore and summoned help. The body was found an hour later. It was believed that the younger negro was seized with cramps.

The water was about 25 feet deep, due to recently heavy rainfall and flood waters. The dead negro is a resident of McNab.

Red river at Fulton had fallen to 32.8 feet, a decline of about a foot since Wednesday morning and nearly two feet since the river reached its highest stage Monday.

Water was moving off of farm land planters in the Fulton area said that some late June corn and peas may be planted but hopes of replanting cotton have been abandoned.

5 Others Drowned
LITTLE ROCK. (AP)—Searching parties sought five persons drowned in Arkansas flood waters Thursday as further relief came to the state from the seventh overflow of the year.

Pat Jordan, 55; Buck Foreman, 25, and Herman Jones, 20, tenant farmers, were the object of a search near Morrilton after the finding of their overturned boat, in which they had been hauling vegetables to a refuge camp.

Near Batesville searching parties hunted for James Underdown, 25, fisherman, following the discovery of his boat four miles below town. He was last seen Wednesday night, apparently asleep in his boat while fishing.

Near Fayetteville a hunt was under way for a man identified only as Kellogg, missing from home since Wednesday.

Meanwhile some relief was promised strangled levees on the swollen St. Francis river near Padougal as the stream registered a slight fall.

The Weather Bureau forecast a further recession in other major Arkansas rivers, while mayors and landowners of the Arkansas valley met here to may permanent flood control projects.

Crap Game Winnings
CHICAGO. (AP)—Lemuel A. Ervin wasn't nearly as lucky at law as in "craps."

Judge Rudolph Desort awarded Mrs. Alma M. Ervin half of the $4000 she said Lemuel won in a crap game, and gave her a divorce with it.

The judge, asserting he didn't shoot craps, said he would be willing to split $4000 won that way.

Markets

NEW ORLEANS. (AP)—Active futures were two to three points higher at the first call on the cotton market here Thursday.

Opening gains were extended to around 50 cents a bale during the early dealings as light buying by professionals and the trade uncovered a scarcity of contracts.

There was little trading in July and this month held at 11.55, but October and December at 11.32 showed fair gains.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened quiet, one lower to one higher with moderate liquidation absorbed by the trade. July 11.60; October 11.28; December 11.29; January 11.30; March 11.34; May 11.35.

Trading was very quiet at the start but contracts proved relatively scarce and the market stiffened up after the call on local and New Orleans buying combined with a moderate trade demand.

October advanced from 11.29 to 11.37 with the general list showing net gains of six to eight points in the first hour. There was some further switching from near to late months but without much change in the differentials.

The early Liverpool cables reported light hedging in that market and said that subsequent trade calling had found comparatively little cotton offering.

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Pure Food and Water Cut Typhoid Deaths

Just how important it is to maintain a supply of pure water and prevent contamination of your food can be illustrated by the remarkable progress toward elimination of typhoid fever.

This disease has been traced not only to contaminated water and food supplies, but to improper sewage disposal and to inadequate control of the typhoid fever carrier. Now, with strict supervision of these agencies, typhoid fever has been reduced to a very low figure.

Annually, for some time, the Journal of the American Medical Association has been keeping track of deaths from typhoid in large cities of the United States. The 1934 report, just made available, considers the typhoid fever mortalities in the same 53 cities that have been covered since 1930.

If Chicago, in 1935, had the same amount of typhoid fever that it had in 1890, in proportion to population, there would be some 60,000 cases of this disease, and perhaps from 6000 to 8000 deaths. Instead, according to the Journal's figures, Chicago has had less than one death for each 100,000 of its population since 1925.

To get an idea of how fast the fight against typhoid has progressed, Chicago had about 15 deaths for each 100,000 of its population between 1906 and 1910; 8 deaths to each 100,000 from 1911 to 1915; 2 1/2 from 1915 to 1920; 1 1/2 from 1920 to 1925; and only one death for every 200,000 population since then.

Out of 14 cities in New England during 1934, there were nine with out a single death from typhoid fever, and not one had as many as two deaths for each 100,000 people. Out of 18 cities in the middle Atlantic states, there were seven without a single death from typhoid fever and all the others had rates below two per 100,000.

In the south Atlantic states only Tampa, Fla., was without a single death, and Richmond, Atlanta, and Norfolk had rates from 3.8 to 5.4 per 100,000.

In the north central states only Fort Wayne, Ind., had a high rate, reaching 6.7 per 100,000, but in the south central area, Birmingham, Chattanooga, and Memphis had exceedingly high rates for modern cities, reaching, in the case of Memphis, a figure of 8.4. New Orleans had 8.9, but not one of the 11 cities in the west had a figure above 2.6.

Summarizing the rates for 1934, there are 23 cities without a single death from typhoid fever; 50 cities with rates below two for each 100,000 of population; 11 with rates from two to five; and only nine cities with rates above five.

Three cities finished their fourth consecutive year without a single death from typhoid fever, and even Atlanta, which still has a high rate, has consistently lowered the number of deaths from typhoid fever by 30 to 35 per cent for the last three years.

A BOOK A DAY

By BRUCE CATTON

Saw the Future—and Thought It a Dream

Unless you can stand a good deal of mystical obscurity in your fiction, you are not likely to care greatly for "The Dark Glass" by March Cato. If you can get by that hurdle, however, you will find it a book of considerable beauty and imaginative power. It deals with a group of people who occupy a somewhat select boarding house in England. The house used to be a tony country home; its owner, a maiden lady, has fallen on evil times and has been obliged to take in paying guests.

On All Souls' Eve, when the dead are supposed to walk and queer things are supposed to happen, this lady chances to hang an ancient mirror in her hallway. One by one her guests glance in it—and immediately undergo a transformation which enables them to look ahead one year in their own lives.

Thus, one by one, just as we get acquainted with the pet desires and dreams of the occupants of the house, we also see just how these dreams are

BEGIN HERE TODAY
KATHARINE STRYKHURST. 20 and beautiful, allows her emotions to rule when she marries MICHAEL HEATHEROE, young reding instructor who comes into a title and fortune. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother is snobbish.

Michael, hurt in a traffic accident, loses his memory and Katharine, unaware of this, thinks he has forgotten his bargain. She goes to New Mexico to forget and on a trip to the desert becomes lost. Michael, meantime, has recovered his memory and set out to find Katharine and explain.

Back home Katharine's friend, ZOE PARKER, learns of the marriage of Katharine and Michael when a servant shows her the certificate. DR. JOHN KAYE, in love with Katharine, unwittingly picks up the certificate when Zoe drops it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
XLIII

A BRASSY sun wheeled across a molten sky. Here and there were clumps of mesquite and sagebrush. But there was not one single living thing in sight save the tall, slim girl in riding things who stumbled across that dreary desert.

It seemed to Katharine she had been walking for hours. The wrist watch strapped to her slender wrist told her it was half-past 11. Any moment now, she told herself gallantly, she might see the car and the tent and the little group of civilized human beings she had left behind. Any moment . . .

meanwhile she must keep on going. To stop meant madness.

If she only had a single drink of water! Just half a glass . . . quarter of a glass to quench the thirst that already tortured her. She thought of the mountain stream in which she had carelessly bathed yesterday morning, thinking nothing of the largesse flowing over the golden rocks. She thought of mounds of sherbet, pale green, lemon yellow served at dinner parties. She thought of tea, tinkling in a tall glass . . .

Your head whirled, dwelling on these things. Better to think of something else.

She sang songs, lightly, until her cracked throat rebelled. She was deadly tired now but still she stumbled above the tops of her jodhpur boots. Once she tore at the top button of her ponce shirt and released it as if better to breathe.

Frank Millard would find her; or Dirk. They both knew this country like a book. They would laugh at this adventure later on. Or would they? She remembered reading the story of a man and woman lost in the desert. They had been middle-aged lovers. The man had left his heart medicine at home so as not to appear handicapped to his bride; the woman had not worn her spectacles for the same reason.

And so both had perished, one because of his solitaire, the other because she could not see to lead them out of their trouble.

Ah, but Katharine was young and strong! She shuddered, remembering the story. That could not happen to her. Death was something far away and unreal, not to be faced just now.

She saw a far-away speck in the sky and whirled, her heart in her mouth, thinking it might be a plane and that she might signal it. But it was only a great bird—there were other birds in its wake—wheeling and circling. Buzzards! Horror—horror! It tore at her throat. The sense of it, closing in on her, made her shiver as with ague.

Five minutes—had it only been five minutes since she glanced at her watch dial last? It seemed hours—years!

A sagbrush root tore at her ankle. She stumbled. Fell. Rising again, she realized that she had hurt her ankle cruelly. Not a sprain, perhaps, but nearly so. She stumbled on . . .

There was no pity in the aching sky, no living thing in all the world to pity her. Only the burning and heat and silence, and far-off, the birds wheeling and swooping.

THERE were no planes to be had nearer than Claymore, Hilda Millard told Michael lifelessly. Fifty miles back, the way they had come. Even then it was not certain. It was an emergency landing field.

"Will you come with me, so that I shan't lose the way?" Michael demanded.

Evelyn Vincent stepped forward. Of course Hilda must go. It was their only chance.

Michael winced at the words. Hilda climbed into the seat, and the motor of the shabby car spun and roared. Michael remembered little later of that mad ride. Fifty miles over desert roads. Claymore in the distance, and—merciful God!—the wings of a ship visible over the little rise.

The pilot was a tubby little man with a mustache. Clem Wilbur from Santa Fe, he said, introducing himself. His own car—he made a hobby of it—but if the lady or the gentleman wanted to go up, why, sure, he'd be glad to.

Michael, briefly, explained. Clem Wilbur whistled. Yes, he knew the region. Come along—they'd get started pronto.

Hilda got back into the car. Michael had been driving. She said she would go back to Miss Vincent. The poor lady would be half-distracted. Hilda, as yet, wouldn't let herself think of Dirk—or Frank either. Of course, they were old hands at this desert business. And yet—she never knew!

By the time she'd got the motor running, Clem Wilbur had taxied to the end of the field. The little ship rose surely. Hilda brushed her hands across her eyes. Of course the whole thing was a nightmare . . .

THE ship made a steady course southward. Michael's heart was hammering against his ribs.

This man Wilbur was a clever pilot. He banked and swerved, dipping low, and Michael strained his eyes until they ached. Once—he saw something white fluttering and his heart leaped, but coming closer—dangerously close—to earth they saw it was only a woman's torn scarf, caught on a jagged root.

The little ship circled and swooped. "She's here—some place," Michael said. "We can't help but find her." "Oh, sure, certainly," the fat man said politely. But he was not so sure they would be in time, if they did find her. He knew the desert. Michael Heatheroe had not prayed since he was a child. His mother had taught him to pray, but somewhere along the line he had forgotten. The words came back to him now. Child's words. Simple, imploring.

"God, don't let anything happen to her."

That was a prayer, if a crude one. There was a pain in his chest, as though a giant hand squeezed his heart.

"Want to go on, brother?" That was the pilot speaking. The fat, amiable pilot who had a date that night back in his home town and wanted to keep it.

"I'll make it worth your while to keep going."

"Oh, that's okay, brother." There was silence for a while, during which Michael's eyes raked the countryside spread below him. A barren, bellish waste, he told himself. A cruel land. Then he gasped.

"Good God—I think—look there!" He handed over the field glasses. The pilot nodded.

"Think so—yes." It was a huddled figure they saw ahead on the desert floor. Khaki-colored clothes. A bright scarf.

Wilbur made a beautiful landing. Michael never knew afterward how he got out of the plane. He remembered stumbling as he ran, and he remembered hearing the soft, hurried breathing of the little man who followed him.

"Got her, brother?" Michael nodded. He had Katharine's head in his arms. Now he was lifting her, carrying her gently as though she were infinitely fragile. She was unconscious—she was breathing! She was alive, thank God!

Her poor, pretty lips were swollen. Her face was stained and streaked. There was a scratch across one cheek. "They had her in the plane now, Michael holding her close."

"Guess she had a bad time of it, huh?" The fat little man turned his ship back toward Claymore. There was a doctor there, he said.

THEY put her to bed in the house of the woman whose husband was in charge of the flying field. A bare ranch house, but the linen was clean and the little bare room had a shade at the window. The doctor came, a shabby man in baggy clothes, and Michael waited in an agony as Mrs. Darrah and the physician disappeared within.

"Guess I'll be pushing off, brother," Wilbur said. Michael said, "Wait a minute." With hands that shook a little, he fumbled for his wallet.

The pilot shook his head, as though regretfully. "Sorry, brother, but I can't take it. 'Twouldn't be right. I've got a girl myself." "She's my wife," Michael said. "No fooling? Well, congratulations, brother." "You think she's going to be all right?" "Why, sure. She'll be right as rain. See if she isn't." Michael wrung the man's hand. Whatever happened, he could never thank this man. Some day, perhaps, he could try.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Points on Nails
Fairly short, oval-shaped nails, covered with a polish that blends well with sun-tanned hands, are best in the summer time.

tsaOR -lyeA- TAOIN TA T TT
If you wear your nails as long as you did last winter, they'll break when you swing a golf club or tennis racket. Furthermore, drawing room nail styles are as out of place on hands that dig in the sand for shells or hold lightly to reins when a hat with a chiffon ten gown.

horse jumps over a fence as a folt You should give yourself a thorough manicure or get one from a professional at least once a week, of course. In addition, make it a rule never to let a day go by without doing a little something to keep your nails and the cuticle around them in the best possible condition.

But nail removal around cuticle before you go to bed at night. Always push it back when you dry your hands on a towel. If you notice strips of dry skin across the little half-moons, apply a bit of cuticle remover and remove the dead skin with the flat end of an orange stick.

Keep rough edges smoothed down with an emery board. To prevent dryness of nails and cuticle, always remove old polish with a remover which has an oily base.

Be as fastidious about selection of liquid polish as you are about rouge for your cheeks or lipstick for your mouth. Most sportswomen prefer natural or very pale pinkish tones. But, once the sun has changed the color of your hands from white to golden brown, there's no reason why you can't use light or dull, dark orange shades.

One manufacturer makes a special orange polish for vacations. Brilliant and rather heavy, this is extremely easy to apply and really stays on for a full week. Another cosmetic line is sponsoring polish to match lipsticks. The sets come in all shades, of course, and certainly should do a lot toward inspiring a girl to take better care of her nails.

Clean Out Kidney Poisons

Wash Out Your 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes

If kidneys don't pass 3 pints a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, the 16 miles of kidney tubes and filters may become clogged with poisonous waste and the danger of acid poisoning is greatly increased. Bladder passages are difficult, which often smart and burn like scalding water and cause discomfort.

This acid condition, brought about by poor kidney functions is a danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

Most people watch their bowels which contain only 27 feet of intestines but neglect the kidneys which contain 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters. If these tubes or filters become clogged with poisons, it may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't run any risk. Make sure your kidneys empty 3 pints a day.

In My Garden

My garden is a chapel. Here the sun strikes through stained windows. Service has begun. A hundred preachers stand in robes of light. And lecture to an audience of one. And here, as in this God-pervaded close, I worship, and my spirit gains repose; I find the essence of the law of life Within the fragrant petals of the rose. Who knows but that the rose may suffer pain?

Her day, like mine, is mixed of sun and rain. Could I but offer beauty for an hour, Perhaps, like her, I should not live in vain.

McRae Lemley had as Wednesday night guests, Hendrix Pope and Robert Adams of Nashville.

Misses Sarah Lee Moore of Prescott and Miss Mabel Dedman of Hot Springs, house guests of Misses Mary and Julia Lemley, who have been the inspiration for a number of brilliant social affairs this week, were the honorees on Wednesday at a beautifully appointed luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lemley in Brookwood. For the occasion, the Lemley home was a bower of lovely summer flowers, with roses, gladioli and lilies predominating. The beautiful old luncheon table, which belonged to the Misses Lemley's paternal great-grandmother, was laid with a lace cloth, and centered with a huge bowl of garden flowers, smaller bowls filled with the same exquisite flowers made a line of the table. Covers were laid for ten, each place being marked with a lovely corsage. A very happy feature of the occasion was that it also marked the birthday anniversary of Miss Julia Lemley, and the proverbial birthday cake topped with burning tapers was cut, disclosing a number of symbols, predicting an interesting future for the one making the lucky cut.

Home Clubs

Patmos—Hinton
Home Demonstration club met June 19th in the home of Mrs. Nath Rider, with 15 members and one visitor present.

The house was called to order by our president, Mrs. Ena Drake. We sang our club songs, and devotionals were led by Mrs. Morgan Smith; prayer by Miss Griffin. Each member present gave reports of their month's work. Our club is doing splendid work. Mrs. Velma Cagle was chosen food preservation leader as Mrs. Powell is sick and cannot attend. Our club choose canning for our goal. Seven members entered the dress contest which will be in July. Miss Griffin took up the kitchen and gave a demonstration on making different kinds of salads. We all enjoyed a few social minutes eating our salad. Our next meeting will be in July with Mrs. P. T. Taylor. Our demonstration will be making new bottoms in chairs. Every one is invited.

estimated would place the measure before the house the week of July 22. "So far as I can speak for the committee," said Chairman Doughton, "it will be the purpose to give reasonable time for those especially interested in this legislation to express their views." The decision to follow this course was reached after a day of confusion precipitated by a press conference statement from President Roosevelt. He told newsmen that while he wanted the wealth-taxes enacted before adjournment, he never had intended that they be hooked up with the nuisance levies and pushed through by Saturday.

Senate Leaders Surprised
Doughton termed "absolutely without foundation" reports that the president had "demanded, even requested or expected" legislation this week. But senate leaders apparently frankly were surprised at Mr. Roosevelt's remarks. It was recalled that after a White House conference Monday evening, Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, announced that such a plan would be followed. Chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee reportedly had proclaimed his intention of tackling the new taxes onto the nuisance tax extension. The situation provided Republican opponents of the tax program with no little amusement. Neither Robinson nor Harrison would comment on the misunderstanding.

A barrister who was sometimes forgetful, having been engaged to plead the cause of an offender, began by saying: "I know the prisoner at the bar, and he bears the character of being a most consummate and impudent scoundrel."

Here somebody whispered to him that the prisoner was his client, whereupon he continued: "But what great and good man ever lived who was not culminated by many of his contemporaries?"—Troy Times Record.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Waffles Iron Out Difficulties of Emergency Meals

By MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

Lucky is the bride who numbers a waffle iron among her wedding gifts. Crisp, golden waffles delight the diner from breakfast to the after-movie party and even have a place in the main course or dessert.

Rice waffles and creamed chicken or creamed fish, plain waffles and maple syrup or honey; waffles and crushed berries; chocolate waffles and ice cream, ginger waffles and whipped cream and later in the season, green corn waffles, are just a few of the delicious combinations possible.

And most important, waffles always can be made at the last minute, so they hold first rank of emergency dishes.

Because waffle batter is a pour batter, it's much more convenient to mix it in a pitcher and pour it on the waffles iron rather than dip it with a spoon from a mixing bowl. The lipper bowls are attractive and I find them easier to beat in than a straight-sided pitcher.

Wipe, Don't Wash
Never wash a waffle iron! The metal must be seasoned before using, but after that, even this material should not be washed. After each baking, wipe with soft crumpled paper and remove all crumbs with a stiff brush kept for the purpose.

Plain waffles with creamed salmon and fresh peas make a delicious luncheon for a summer noon when the weather suddenly turns cool.

I remember one evening I had planned to serve Boston coolers because the weather had been almost unbearably hot. Early in the evening a thunder storm came up and by ten o'clock everybody wanted a sweeter

Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: Orange juice, cereal, cream, broiled cottage ham, creamed potatoes, toast, milk, and coffee.

Luncheon: Hot bouillon, stuffed tomato salad, rolls, milk, iced tea. Dinner: Fillet of flounder broiled and served with lemon butter, spaghetti timbales, apple ring salad, chocolate waffles with ice cream, milk, coffee.

And Boston coolers were tobacco. So we made waffles and had piping hot coffee with waffles and ice cream and nobody knew that it hadn't been planned that way.

Plain Waffles
One and one-third cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1-3/4 teaspoon soda, 2 eggs, 1 cup sour milk, 4 tablespoons melted butter.

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Add milk, stirring constantly to keep smooth. Add yolks of eggs well beaten and melted shortening. Mix thoroughly and beat in soda dissolved in a little cold water. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Bake in a hot waffle iron.

The batter can be made several hours in advance and kept on ice until needed.

To make chocolate waffles melt two squares of baking chocolate and add 1/2 cup sugar. Decrease amount of butter 2 tablespoons.

For ginger waffles add 1/2 cup molasses, 1 teaspoon ginger and 1/4 cup sugar. Increase flour to 1 1/2 cups and soda to 2-3 teaspoon.

Editor The Star: Please be assured that your well-written editorial in the Hope Star of Tuesday, June 25, is sincerely appreciated by our entire organization.

As you bring out in your editorial, passage of a Workmen's Compensation Act is not being sought for corporate advantage but really is a movement in which the mutual interest of labor and industrial organizations unite. E. I. McKinley, Commissioner of Labor for the State of Arkansas, the State Federation of Labor and Independent Labor Interests have become militant in urging the passage of such a measure and it is anticipated that they will prevail upon Governor Futrell to include it as a subject of immediate importance should he call a special session of the Legislature.

No. 1 Player Has Improved One Department of His Game Which Showed Slightest Weakness

Fred Perry will be more formidable than ever when the world's No. 1 player defends his singles title at Wimbledon starting on June 24, according to reports from the other side. If the renowned Briton had the slightest weakness, it was his backhand, which they say has shown marked improvement in recent tournaments. The English star is shown in three shots taken during the beginning of a backhand return.

Perry's hit and follow through are shown here. They now declare that Perry has demonstrated his ability to play this type of shot on a par with other departments of his game. The world amateur champion tackled his former rival in defending the Wimbledon title. Included among his challengers are Sidney B. Wood Jr. of America, Jack Crawford, of Australia and Baron Gottfried von Cramm, of Germany.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

—BY RODNEY DUTHER

WASHINGTON.—Ewing Mitchell would be the most popular man in town if he had been able to make his charges stick.

Neither the bungling attack of that ousted "little cabinet" member nor any conceivable amount of white-wash can bury the orders which emerge from the Department of Commerce under Secretary Dan Rogers, the ex-lobbyist.

It will take an even more inept person than Mitchell to destroy the department's reputation here as the New Deal's chief citadel of favoritism and peanut politics.

If Mitchell had had the faintest notion of how to assemble and present his charges and evidence effectively, he would have made much more of an impression.

About all he displayed, however, was a strong sense of indignation and a living exhibit of the type of folks who land in soft spots in the Roper organization.

The Leviathan deal by which certain friends of the president and others were excused from penalties for non-operation was of debatable merit. Comptroller General McSparrow opposed it. Roosevelt, however, he would give up those yacht cruises with Vincent Astor and Kermit Roosevelt—two of the alleged beneficiaries—believing "it doesn't look good" and gives his enemies ammunition.

But in that Mitchell was digging up old bones.

Fire Isn't Quelled
Mitchell's flop will not divert fire from the other sources at Roper's Shipping Board Bureau, Steamship Inspection Service, Bureau of Aeronautics, and other bureaus. His evidence of continuous excuses from penalty for violation of navigation laws, of ships allowed to go to sea inadequately manned or with broken propellers, and of steamship inspectors allowed to remain after being found to have taken "entertainments" still stands in the record.

The Morris Castle, which burned with loss of 100 lives after being built with government money, was found to have had passenger cabins and stairways made largely of wood—including Oregon pine in the latter case—which burned quickly.

"Hatchet Men" Rewarded
Secretary Roper has hired a new crew of press agents and his critics believe he needs them. The department has been notorious for political gerrymandering which triumphed on many seasoned old-timers.

H. Russell Amory, hatchet man in the clearance of employees and often credited with leading black communication of Dr. Willard Thorp as chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, has since been rewarded by a high post in the Shipping Board Bureau.

Some of the non-political old-timers in the department say they often pray for the return of Herbert Hoover as secretary of commerce.

Ten Much Family
After restoring the current local reputation to Mr. Roper, it is perhaps only fair to point out also that political activities of the Roosevelt boys, James and Elliott, have roused no great enthusiasm among many folks in the administration camp.

Obviously, this isn't a matter ever discussed publicly. But it is discussed plenty in private.

Some New Dealers are convinced that the activities of the presidential family, aside from Mr. Roosevelt, have been relatively a net loss. There's some reason to believe that Jimmy, who has been virtual patronage boss of Massachusetts and has prospered in various lines of business, has lately been yanked out of the limelight for a while.

And you're likely to hear less of Elliott as a result of efforts to oust him from vice presidency of the Young

PUT YOUR CAR IN OUR HANDS for a 3-week "Tank Test"

How long since you've had That Good Gulf gas as your driving companion?
Unless you've gotten acquainted recently, you can't know what a really great gasoline it is!
So here's a sporting proposition...
Try That Good Gulf for 3 weeks—long enough to let it prove that it's 5 good gasolines in one.
Then see if you don't check with the motorists who've already made the "tank test."
Try it—and we're betting you'll say "Thumbs up!"
GULF REFINING COMPANY

*750 Motorists said "You're On"—and Gulf Clicked!

TO GIVE you an idea of what you can expect from That Good Gulf Gasoline, we made this experiment...

We invited 750 motorists—average owners of average cars—to buy Gulf for 3 weeks and judge it themselves.

They agreed—drove Gulf in their own cars under all kinds of conditions—and reported on 5 important points: (1) mileage (2) starting (3) pick-up (4) power (5) all-around performance.

Seven out of ten voted Gulf superior on one or more of these points. Many voted a straight Gulf ticket—found it better in all 5 ways!

Gulf won because it's 5 good gasolines in one. It is controlled to such accurate refining limits that it gives you not merely 2 or 3 important qualities—but five!

Try it in your car for 3 weeks. We'll wager you'll climb on the Gulf bandwagon.

Q: What free Gulf tire service can boost your gas mileage?

You'll find the answer to this question in this free Gulf booklet, plus 14 other helpful hints on gasoline economy. Get your free copy today at the sign of the Orange Disc.

4-Mill Levee for Little Rock Urged

Propose to Eliminate Flood Threat to City and North Little Rock

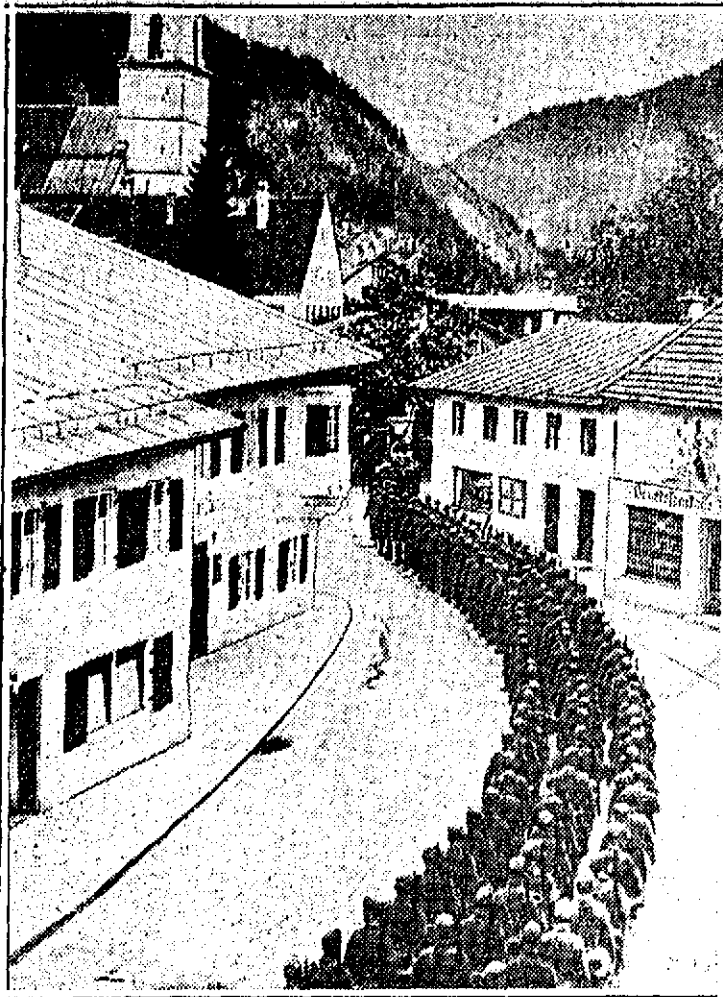

LITTLE ROCK—A survey crew composed of two men furnished by Little Rock and two furnished by North Little Rock will take the field Thursday, under supervision of City Engineer J. E. McCook Jr., to begin a survey of proposed levee lines for the protection of the two cities.

Mr. McCook said the party probably will begin work at the western end of the survey on the north side of the river near Big Rock and move eastward. He estimated that the field work can be completed within a week if the flood waters recede rapidly. Several days additional will be required to assemble data.

J. H. Miller, assistant engineer, and P. R. Van Frank, senior engineer for the Memphis District, U. S. Army Engineers, left for Memphis, but will return here after the survey starts and will supervise preparation of an application for the proposed levees under the Works Progress program.

Mr. McCook estimated that nearly two miles of levees would be required on the north side of the river, about three-quarters of a mile for protection of the East Little Rock flood area and about a mile for protection of the lowland area at the foot of Lincoln avenue.

War Drama at Oberammergau

A new sort of drama was enacted at peaceful Oberammergau, German village that is world-famous for its Passion Plays, when it was taken over by the Reichswehr in the first extensive military warfare since Chancellor Hitler launched his rearming campaign. An infantry column is shown as it marched through the picturesque main street of the mountain village.

Home Loan Plans Advancing Rapidly

Deadline Thursday—175,000 Loans Negotiated in U. S. to Date

LITTLE ROCK — A. O. Eberhart, former governor of Minnesota, now special representative with headquarters in Washington, told Little Rock members of the banking, building and loan association and real estate fraternities Wednesday night that in visiting more than 225 towns and cities in most of the 48 states he had not heard a valid argument against the federal housing act.

Mr. Eberhart was the principal speaker at a meeting at the state FHA office in the Southern building and was the guest here Wednesday morning and afternoon of Hal L. Norwood, state FHA director.

He said that out of 175,000 loans which have been negotiated under the federal housing act, only 24 defaults have been reported by the 5,100 banks that have made the loans. He declared that loans made under Title 1 of the act, based on the honesty, character and desire of the borrower to pay, are the safest loans that can be made.

Mr. Eberhart said it is the hope of the Federal Housing Administration to see the construction of 3,000,000 new homes within the next 10 years. Such new construction under provisions of Title 2 would afford annually employment to 2,000,000 persons now unemployed, while anticipated repair and modernization work under Title 1 would afford employment to 1,000,000 persons annually, he said.

He said that 90 per cent of the young criminals in Chicago have been found to have come from neglected homes.

He also urged the advancement of the better housing program as a means of escaping continuance of the "dole," which, he declared, was destroying the morale of the American workman and causing the financial ruin of the taxpayer.

Mr. Norwood presided at the meeting, introducing J. J. Harrison, state

NEC director, and George W. Donahy, former governor, who spoke briefly. Following Mr. Eberhart's talk, W. S. Daniel, chief underwriter in the state FHA office here, explained changes in Title 1 and Title 2 of the federal housing act.

Midnight Thursday night is the deadline for filing applications for loans from the Home Owners Loan Corporation. HOLC officials in the state office here announced Wednesday. Only a comparatively few applications have been received since the June 27 deadline was announced two weeks ago. Persons owning property eligible for loans were warned to file them Thursday if they wish to make applications for loans.

Kites entered in the annual flying competition in Tokushima, Japan, frequently are so large they require 200 men to hold the cords.

Italy Cool Toward England's Envoy

Eden Finds France, Italy United Against Anglo-German Sea Pact

Copyright Associated Press
ROME, Italy.—(P)—Italian circles said Premier Mussolini turned a deaf ear Monday to Captain Anthony Eden's explanation of the Anglo-German naval accord.
Italians predicted freely that no results would come from the conference between Mussolini and Britain's roving peace representative save possibly a European air accord.

Cool Reception
ROME, Italy.—(P)—Great Britain's roving diplomat, Capt. Anthony Eden arrived Sunday night in Rome, faced with a united Italo-French front in opposition to Britain's methods of obtaining a naval agreement with Germany.

His welcome was cool. Fulvio Suvich, undersecretary for foreign affairs, went to the station to meet him, but there was no demonstration, such as usually accompanies a statesman's arrival, and the customary top hats were missing.

Shortly before Eden got here from Paris talks, Suvich received Count Charles de Chambrun, French ambassador, who had just returned from Paris. Suvich, it was said, told him the Italian viewpoint on England's accord allowing Germany to build up to 35 per cent of her naval strength was identical with that of France.

Both governments object to the manner in which London reached an agreement without taking into consideration the opinions of France and Italy. This, it was believed, will be stated plainly to Eden by Premier Mussolini when they meet Monday.

Despite Italy's objections to the way England concluded the German naval agreement, she admits nevertheless, that she draws much advantage from it.

"If Germany constructs a powerful fleet, which naturally will be all concentrated in the North Sea, then France and England will have to draw a more or less important part of their fleet from the Mediterranean, to transfer them to the Atlantic and the North Sea."

"The advantage that the Anglo-German accord brings us therefore is that probably within a few years our fleet will be the strongest in the Mediterranean. This will render our collaboration more efficient and perhaps more appreciated by the two friendly powers (France and England)."

Eden was accompanied by William Strang, of the Foreign Office, whose particular field is the League of Nations affairs, indicated his determination to bring before Il Duce the subject of the League as affected by the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, despite the Italian government's reluctance to have this matter discussed.

Auto Industry to Take Much Cotton

This Year's Consumption of Southern Staple 1/2 Million Bales

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—The recent prediction that automobile production this year will reach the high total since 1929 has been received with pleasure by the cotton trade, indicating that more than 500,000 bales of cotton will be used by that industry during 1935.

At a meeting last week in Detroit of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, it was predicted that more than 5,250,000 cars and trucks would be made during 1935.

But each of these new units will go approximately 70 pounds of cotton. Fiber for the tires, seat covers and parts of the fabric require the most cotton, but insulation for wiring and many other parts use the fiber in smaller quantities.

Recently an attempt has been made to use lint for upholstery in the seats and experiments are being made to see if raw cotton makes suitable stuffing for cushions.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

BY DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Closeup impressions of Hollywoodians:

Roly-poly Charles Laughton, sweating with quiet fluency better than any other man I have known, except the late Louis Wolheim.

Jean Parker, a whole bouquet of orchids.

Norma Shearer, like the girls in cigarette ads.

Gary Cooper, lean and lanky boredom.

Andy Devine, a swell plumber's helper.

Eleanor Powell, a living version of Irving Berlin's music.

Pat O'Brien, bulldog tenacity.

Marion Davies, Hollywood's Santa Claus.

Sylvia Sydney, a cuddly bear cub—with claws.

Irene Dunne, excelling at being properly naughty.

Freddie March, using too many big words correctly.

Ruth Chatterton, pompousness chewing gum.

Wendy Barrie always lookin' down on the world.

Robert Taylor, Domo in the flesh.

George Raft, a miniature Maxie Bear.

Betty Furness, volleys of eternal babble.

Will Rogers, the only actor in Hollywood who always tells the truth.

W. C. Fields, preferring to be laughed with, not at.

Carole Lombard, a feminine Vince Barnett.

Herbert Marshall, detached aloofness.

Ann Shirley, a little girl playing grown-up.

Joan Crawford, a tan setting for white gardenias.

Leslie Howard, cowboy and Indian.

Rotund Peter Lorre, dumplings and gravy.

Katharine Hepburn, tempered steel.

Janette MacDonald, beauty in a solid gold frame.

Lee Tracy, always in a hurry but not going any place.

Zasu Pitts, suggesting sad-eyed spaniels.

Claudette Colbert, bubbling like champagne.

Carl Brisson, synonymous with Bohemian suppers.

Garbo, an unwilling Sphinx.

Clark Gable, champing like a thoroughbred.

Kay Francis, sturdy but fickle.

Constance Bennett, a leaping panther.

Bob Montgomery, always fighting for the underdog.

Shirley Temple, a dancing buttercup.

Marlene Dietrich, reminding of a costume ball.

Toby Wing, the echo of a laugh.

Fred Astaire, a rhythmic tornado.

Guy Kibbee, a bouncing rubber ball.

Impassioned Color.

Director Lloyd Bacon has outside Technicolor in the matter of assembling color combinations. The other day he appeared on "The Irish in Us" set attired in white flannels, black and white shoes, a black shirt, yellow tie, and green hat.

As Foods Run

A new twist in cafe menus is being introduced in "Leander Clicks," a race track picture featuring James Gleason and Zasu Pitts. Instead of an ordinary menu, a sign in the track's safe window reads: "TODAY'S ENTRIES—Mambringer, the winner; Roast Pork, second; Ha maned gas to show; Hot Dogs, scratched.

Nice Villain

Basil Rathbone is Hollywood's most disesteemed man these days. Having made quite a reputation for himself as a villainous character, he now has to paste a beauty mark on his cheek every morning for his role of the Marquis de St. Evremonte in "A Tale of Two Cities."

Repeat Engagement

The other night, while driving home Nelson Eddy hit a bump lost control of his car, and smashed into a lamp post. The actor wasn't even scratched, but the repair bill on his car amounted to $85. Just a year ago he met with an accident on the same corner and the repair bill at that time also was $85.

Navy to Open Bids for 13 New Ships

America Will Spend 460 Millions Rebuilding Fleet in Pacific

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Still insisting that "we don't want to start a building rivalry" with other powers, Secretary Swanson disclosed Wednesday the navy was moving swiftly to take advantage of the $460,000,000 appropriation bill signed Tuesday by President Roosevelt. Swanson said bids on 13 of the 24 new vessels provided for will be opened August 7.

Navy talk of its big building program contained constant reference to the recent Pacific maneuvers. Mention was made of a mysterious "Problem 16" but Admiral William H. Standley, chief of operations, would only say that it was to adjust officers and men to Pacific geography.

Swanson said that by the date for opening bids navy yards also will have prepared cost estimates. The proportion of government and private building then will be decided. The Vinson act, authorizing the construction program to be completed by 1942, specified that except for an aircraft carrier, at least half the vessels must be built in navy yards.

The 13 vessels on which bids will be asked shortly include the carrier, one light cruiser, three 1,350-ton destroyers, five 1,500-ton destroyers and three submarines. Other vessels to be started later include another light cruiser, seven 1,500-ton destroyers and three submarines.

Standley made his Pacific maneuvers report after witnessing the concluding stages and checking over the war games results.

"With the ships and planes now available in the forces afloat," Standley reported, "manned by the fleet, by attaining their present high state of efficiency justified the trust and confidence, not only of the Navy Department, but of the nation at large."

Standley said one lesson of the maneuvers, which involved half the navy's effective air strength of 500 planes, was that aircraft have not

Union Grove

The young folks of this place met Sunday night and organized a B. Y. F. T. C. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Jess Varnaby, president; Jimmie Lee, vice-president; Mrs. Clyde Calloway, secretary. The society will present a program every Sunday night. The public is invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Brown and family and Jimmie Lee attended the singing at Holly Grove Sunday.

Mrs. R. M. Arnold and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Jackson of Beards Chapel.

Mr. Walter Johnson, who returned after several weeks visit in Ft. Worth and Dallas, Texas.

Mr. Rufe Nivens made a business trip to Prescott Saturday.

Woodrow and Ruby Johnson are spending several days with relatives in Dallas, Texas.

Several from this community went to Red River Sunday.

Otis and L. T. Arnold called on Misses Allene and Wenonah Boyd Saturday night.

Cardui for Certain Pains

"Several years ago, I suffered quite a lot at menstruation time," writes Mrs. Oscar Brannan, of Vicksburg, Miss. "I took Cardui and I believe it stopped all this trouble. Last year, I felt the need of Cardui again, for pains in my head and back at my menstruation period. I went back to Cardui. Now I do not suffer. I feel just fine and can go ahead with my work as at other times. I feel that any time I spend money for Cardui I am getting value received."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. —Adv.

Diesel Auto Is to Cross U. S. on $8

Makes First 966 Miles on $1.79 Worth of Low-Grade Fuel

COLUMBUS, Ind.—(AP)—The nation's first Diesel-powered passenger automobile resumed its leisurely coast-to-coast test run Wednesday traveling the third leg—from its home plant here to Chicago—on the trip from New York to Los Angeles.

Clessie L. Cummins, pioneer Diesel automotive designer, left New York city in the car Monday, June 17, intending to spend not more than $8 for fuel to reach Los Angeles. The first two legs of the trip—966 miles—have cost $1.79.

The fuel—number two grade furnace oil—costs nine cents a gallon.
